CROMWELLIAN ADJOURNMENT

(Mr. OBEY asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Speaker, I had originally intended to take about 15 minutes to recite my objections to our leaving with all of the unfinished business, but I have been persuaded by those with greater wisdom to simply remind the House of something the gentleman from Massachusetts said yesterday. He showed us the statement of Oliver Cromwell upon dismissing Parliament in 1653, which reads as follows: "Ye who are grown intolerably odious to the whole Nation; you who are deputed here by the people to get grievances redress'd, are yourselves become the greatest grievance. Your country, therefore, calls upon me to cleanse this Augean stable, by putting a final period to your iniquitous proceedings in this House; and which, by God's help and the strength he has given me, I am now come to do; I command ye therefore, upon the peril of your lives, to depart immediately out of this place; go, get out! Make haste! Ye venal slaves be gone! So! Take away that shining bauble there, and lock the doors. In the name of God, go!"

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Speaker, if the gentleman will yield, the gentleman is a student of Oliver Cromwell, and I enjoy reading Cromwell's very famous statements as well.

I would like to respond to the gentleman's Cromwell quote by reading another one. These were Oliver's dying words.

He said, "It is not my design to drink or to sleep, but my design is to make what haste I can to be gone." So goodbye, God bless you, see you in two weeks.
